Victor Jory Will Play Celebrated Role In Ramona

Victor Jory will play the role of Alessandro again this season in the famed California outdoor play "Ramona" which opens April 17 in Ramona Bowl near Hemet-San Jacinto. It is announced by Lloyd D. Mitchell, general manager.

Returning from an 11-month picture making trip in England and Australia, Jory arrived in Hollywood this week to begin preparations for renewal of his film work in this country. Fortunately for the 1937 production of Ramona, he arrived in time to consider playing the important role of Alessandro which he has made famous.

Immortal Love Story
This will mark Jory's fifth consecutive season in the celebrated spectacular play which the people of Hemet and San Jacinto present every spring for six performances. This season's dates are April 17-18, 24-25 and May 1-2.

The townspeople of the twin cities who play all but the principal roles in the cast of 250 are busily engaged with the preliminaries necessary to the staging of the exciting production based on the immortal love story by Helen Hunt Jackson. YANG AND YIN by Alice Hobart: Since the publication of "Oil for the Lamps of China" by Alice Hobart, its successor has been eagerly awaited and now "Yang and Yin" is hailed as her finest book. The impact of "West on East" is the central theme, thru which runs the story of Peter's life and love. The impact of Western civilization upon the culture of China is not presented as an abstraction. The great forces of opposition are embodied in a story that is always moving forward. The two-half worlds are gradually drawn together toward a union of spirit—the sensitive, highly trained doctor, Peter Frayer, with his beautiful wife, and the high-class Sue family—so foreign to each other in the beginning, and forever opposed in outlook, are slowly shaped to mutual understanding. Mrs. Hobart deals with lovable human beings of fine sensitivity. Her penetration into the ideas and emotions of foreigners in China is far deeper than most authors who write of the country.

THE OLD ASHBURN PLACE by Margaret Flint: The old Ashburn place had begun as a log cabin and from it grows the story of a staunch Maine hillside farm. An unpretentious story with much flavor and originality; and the story of an American family, as true as the New England background against which it is painted. Many New England farmhouses hold stories but Margaret Flint has made this one real and unforgettable with many human characters—Pop, genial and caustic by turns, his varied and lively household, but most of all Charley Ashburn, with his dependability and kind of homespun heroism that makes him difficult to forget. Those readers who enjoyed "As the Earth Turns" will find this very pleasant reading.

HOME RANCH by Will James: The story of life on the Seven X Ranch of the Mitchell family and the cowboys who worked for them; of young Austin Mitchell and his sister June, and of the pilgrims from the East who invited themselves to the Seven X one summer to find out what "real" ranch life was like, may be enjoyed in Will James' eventful novel "Home Ranch." The reader will find out without any of the stock devices of Western fiction, something of ranch life as it is today, the everyday and night happenings in the lives of cowboys.

Youngsters Make Merry as Little Hostesses Entertain Friends on Natal Days

Birthdays may come and birthdays may go but none are ever quite so important as those before one starts on the teen ladder. Remember how long it seemed from one birthday to another when you were a child? No doubt everyone feels the same about its being the very most important day in the year.

Children speak of it for months and plan to make it the grandest ever. Happy is the parent who plans the party with care. One always feels that the child who comes with the first spring flowers is endowed with a certain cheerfulness, symbolic of the season. They expect and get so much from life. Their parties coming prior to Easter make them most interesting for there are such clever decorative schemes to work out and such cunning favors to enjoy.

The little girls appear in their gay spring frocks and

Easter Rites In Hollywood Bowl Are Announced

An Easter sunrise service, new in detail but old in tradition, will be held March 28 at the famous Hollywood Bowl, according to Mrs. Burdette H. Chapman, who for the third time has been elected general chairman of the Hollywood civic group which plans the yearly religious festival.

A group of 1,000 artists will bring to the more than 25,000 worshippers who crowd the Bowl on Easter morning, a service celebrating the rising of Christ from the tomb and Hollywood ministers of all denominations will participate in the services. Dr. Cleveland Klebber, president of the Hollywood Ministerial association, announced that the sermon this year will be delivered by Dr. Frank Chalmers McKean, pastor of the West Hollywood Presbyterian church. Invocation will be pronounced by Dr. James Hamilton Lash, Dr. Elijah Hull Longbrake will read the scripture lesson and the Rev. Fletcher Roman will pronounce the benediction.

The Los Angeles federal music project will again supply the music for the service, which will start at 5 o'clock and end at 6. A symphony orchestra of more than 100 and a choir of 250 trained voices will augment the traditional "Children's Cross" of 250 junior choirsters robed in white.

The drill team will have charge of the initiatory work at a meeting in Burbank, Monday, March 15.

ST. CECELIA'S PLAN SILVER TEA PARTY
